Presentation

The Degree in Fashion Design and Production is unique in the national context. It is an education that combines two major areas, Fashion Design and Fashion Production, and where the contribution of Media Arts to Fashion has special relevance. Studying Fashion Design and Production at the Lusófona University is an extremely enriching experience that combines the reality of academic training in the area with the reality of the professional environment. The course will have specialists guest's from the market in the areas of design, fashion production and various areas of the fashion world. Their contribution to the students' training will allow them, among other experiences, to present the work reality where the future graduates will integrate and establish partnerships for professional internships.
