Presentation

The PhD in Management, developed in partnership by UTAD and Universidade Lusófona, offers advanced training focused on research, innovation, and real impact on organizations and society. This program prepares researchers and professionals to face contemporary management challenges, such as digital transformation, global competitiveness, and sustainability. With a strong connection to applied research and knowledge transfer, the PhD promotes intellectual autonomy, critical thinking, and scientific excellence. The articulation between academia, companies, and public institutions creates a stimulating environment, fostering opportunities for collaboration, innovation, and professional development. Part of an ecosystem of innovation with a strong regional, national, and international impact, the PhD in Management is a benchmark program for those who want to lead change and create economic and social value.
