Presentation

The Program in Literary Creation and Experimentation is designed for anyone who wishes to develop literary writing skills while deepening their reflection on creative processes and contemporary literature. Organized around workshops focused on narrative, poetry, autobiographical writing, and dramatic text, the program combines individual guidance, creative experimentation, and critical dialogue with faculty and guest writers. It culminates in the conception and development of an original writing project, allowing participants to establish their own authorial voice within an environment of creativity, sharing, and literary rigor.
